Question 1

a Muslim who believes the Qur'an is the word of Allah, delivered by Jibril, is likely to treat it with great respect, oe — B1

development: e.g. washing (wudu) before touching it, keeping it on a high shelf or wrapped in cloth, not placing it on the floor, oe — B1

a Muslim may also learn, recite or memorise it, or follow its teachings in daily life, because it is believed to be Allah's message delivered accurately by a trustworthy angel, oe — B1

Answer: It may be treated with great respect (for example washing before touching it) and learned, recited and followed, because it is believed to be Allah's word brought by Jibril.

Question 2

point 1: Muslims believe Malak al-Mawt (the Angel of Death) takes each person's soul when their time comes, oe — B1

development: Qur'an 32:11 teaches that the Angel of Death, who has been put in charge of people, will take their souls, oe — B1

point 2: Muslims believe angels are present at death and greet the souls of the righteous with peace and good news, oe (also credit Munkar and Nakir questioning a person in the grave, if made clear this follows death) — B1

development: the Qur'an describes angels taking the souls of the righteous and greeting them with 'peace be upon you', and the wrongdoers being told of punishment, oe — B1

Answer: E.g. the Angel of Death takes each soul (Qur'an 32:11); angels are present at death and greet the righteous with peace (Qur'an).

Question 3

Jibril, oe — B1

Mika'il, oe — B1

Israfil / Malak al-Mawt (Izra'il) / Munkar / Nakir, any not already credited, oe — B1

Answer: Any three: Jibril; Mika'il; Israfil; Malak al-Mawt (Izra'il); Munkar; Nakir.
